TWA Plane With 9 Aboard Feared Wreck at Fresno

Craft Unheard of Since Pilot Reports Blind Flying, Ice on Wings Last Night, Ready to Land.

OFF TO MOUNTAINS

Silence Follows Report at 10,000 Feet—Ship Wanders Off to Mountains.

Fresno, Calif., March 2 (AP)—Trapped by a sudden, violent storm, a TWA airliner was believed today to have crashed with its nine occupants in the mountains east of Fresno.

The Transcontinental and Western Air transport had not been heard from since 9:28 o'clock last night (12:28 a. m., EST) when Pilot John Graves reported he was flying blind and preparing to make an emergency landing at Fresno.

Bound from San Francisco to Los Angeles, the plane was caught in a sudden rain and wind storm as it flew over the Tehachapi mountains about 8:30 p. m. Ice formed on the wings. Rain fell in torrents. Static interfered with radio.

During the next hour the plane seemingly wandered in the air over San Joaquin valley, apparently trying to dodge the storm and keep on the radio beacon.

Graves reported he was preparing to drop down from 10,000 feet to land. Then silence.

Officials Rush About

A report that a plane was seen flying low through heavy rain in the Sierra Nevada 46 miles northeast of Fresno brought TWA officials hurrying to Fresno from Los Angeles and San Francisco to direct a search of the area by ground.

Planes were ready to help as soon as weather permitted. All planes on the coast from Burbank, Calif., to Portland, Ore., and from San Francisco to Salt Lake City had been grounded by the violence of the storm before the $105,000 TWA plane turned back.

The route of the 14-passenger craft had been changed before its takeoff because of adverse weather over the mountains.

This was the first mishap to mar the TWA record on the Pacific coast since the line began service in the far west in 1928.

Area Location

Reports that a plane had been sighted flying low in mountainous country 30 miles east of Fresno prompted airport attaches there to express belief the missing TWA plane was down somewhere between Fresno and Bakersfield.

Radio messages from the plane, as it followed the airways beam down the San Joaquin valley, gave no hint of trouble until after it passed Fresno at about 5,000 feet in a light rain.

Near the Tehachapis, icy temperatures were encountered. At 8:33 p. m. the plane turned back toward Fresno.

With no decision yet made where to land, the plane reported flying at 10,000 feet at 8:50 p. m.

The dispatcher at Union Air Terminal at 9:16 p. m. ordered the Bakers Field landing when informed the plane was north of that point.

Searching Party

A searching party left San Francisco Airport by automobile to hunt for the missing plane.

The "Dirlams" listed as passengers were two Stanford students—Jay Tracy Dirlam and Mary Louise Dirlam. They registered at the university from Mansfield, Ohio.

Mr and Mrs. L. B. Walts were on their way to Chicago on a pleasure trip. Walts is a San Francisco oil salesman.

N. H. Salisbury, a TWA pilot riding as a passenger, was returning to duty at Kansas City after visiting his mother at Walnut Grove, Calif.

Pilot Graves made his home in Palo Alto, Calif.; First Officer Wallace, in Tucson, Ariz., and Stewardess Martha Wilson, in Philadelphia. Salisbury was a pilot on TWA's Kansas City-Newark run.

Most of TWA's highest ranking officers were in the west when news came the airliner was lost. All arranged to speed to Fresno.

Congress Study of Monopolies Seen As New F.D.R. Bid

Washington, March 2 (AP)—White House conferences on revising the anti-trust laws strengthened the belief of many legislators today that President Roosevelt would ask Congress to undertake a thorough investigation of monopolies.

The President said yesterday he would submit an anti-trust message soon, but gave no approximate date. The general opinion on Capitol Hill was that he would not advocate any new legislation until the inquiry was completed.

Consideration of specific bills thus would be deferred until next year, because congressional leaders hope for an early adjournment.

Such a course would be in line with the contention of many observers that the administration is avoiding any steps which might discourage an upturn in business.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed no details of his monopoly talks yesterday with Attorney General Cummings, Assistant Attorney General Jackson, and Chairman Douglas of the securities commission.

At his press conference, however, he replied to several questions regarding other business and labor problems.

Self-Help Lacking

Secretary Roper had informed him, Mr. Roosevelt said, that "self help" was well nigh lacking in suggestions from small business men for combatting the recession. The commerce department still is analyzing their proposals.

The President said he had no immediate changes in mind for the national labor relations act, but added it was an evolutionary law and he hoped it would be improved from time to time. He placed the social security and crop control acts in the same category.

Letters from about 15 manufacturers and employes, Mr. Roosevelt said, complained that newspapers do not give enough publicity to cases settled by the labor relations board. He read from the board's January report showing that of 116 strike cases, 103 cases covering 8,030 workers had been settled under the act.

Confers With Glass

Mr. Roosevelt also conferred yesterday with Senator Glass (D.-Va.) about the latter's proposal to regulate bank holding companies and to prevent creation of new ones.

Among other things, Glass said, the measure would restrict the control which a holding company might exercise over the banks in which it owns stock.

The President recently suggested the abolition of bank holding companies. Glass, an expert on banking legislation, originally considered plans for eliminating them over a five-year period. He said he decided on a modified form of regulation because many communities have insufficient resources to maintain locally-owned banks.

The Glass measure shared interest among congressional banking authorities with a request by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that banks give borrowers "very much longer" periods in which to repay loans.

In letters to every bank in the country, Jones also urged that collateral requirements be made less stringent.

Work Camp

Albany, N. Y., March 2 (AP)—Establishment of work colonies to care for vagrants and so-called "rounders" was discussed by the state correction commission today as a solution to what it termed "a community nuisance and a menace."

A bill now before the legislature, introduced by Democratic Senator George F. Rogers of Rochester, would provide for the establishment of such camps for "adult male vagrants, tramps and inebriates."

The commission's comment was part of an approved report of an inspection of the Dutchess county jail at Poughkeepsie, which mentioned complaints of several prisoners against the length of their sentences (90 days).

"These men were of the typical 'rounder' type," the report said, "who spend their time in drinking, fighting, petty thieving and depredations.

Some of them, it added, "represent a type that was foremost in the minds of those who for years have advocated the state taking over their care through the establishment of work colonies."

Britain to Spend More Than Half Billion On Air Force in Year

Real Idea Is to Make British Air Squadron Best in the World, Report Says

London, March 2 (AP).—Tossing more fuel into the roaring rearmament furnace Britain will spend more than a half billion dollars on her airforce in the year beginning April 1.

Air estimates announced today totalled £111,592,000 or $557,510,000—allowing for purchase of planes, construction, maintenance, borrowed money, interests, etc.

Technically the figure was put at £73,500,000, or $367,500,000, as against £56,500,000, or $282,500,000 last year. This total is the estimate for specific and apparent expenses on the airforce.

The larger figure, however, taking in interest charges, etc., shows the real measure of British spending to make the British airforce the world's best.

The figures, released by coincidence on the heels of German Field Marshal Goering's boastful assertion yesterday that the German airforce would be "awful in action" if war should come, included expenditures for the fleet air arm—planes attached to the naval fleet.

90,000 Employed

This indication of Britain's feverish rearming came from Viscount Swinton, secretary of state for air, in a memorandum accompanying estimates that the number of persons employed in the aircraft industry had increased from 30,000 in 1935 to a present 90,000. This did not include persons employed in the production

Conway Bill Asks 3 Million for State Aid to City Roads

Albany, March 2 (Special)—Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, Kingston, Republican, introduced in the legislature here late Tuesday afternoon, a bill making an appropriation of $3,000,000 for state aid to cities, other than New York city, for maintenance and repair of city streets which connect with state highways.

The bill, which was sent to the Assembly ways and means committee for further consideration, is designed to prevent in part the present great diversion of motor fuel tax and motor vehicle license fees into channels other than for maintenance and reconstruction of state highways, the bill's sponsor explained. Introduction of the measure follows on the adoption of a resolution by the Kingston common council, asking for relief from diversion of gasoline tax and automobile license fees.

Provisions of Bill

According to Assemblyman Conway, cities would receive full reimbursement for construction, maintenance and repair of city streets which form a part of the state's highway system, providing the work is first approved by the State Superintendent of Public Works.

Assemblyman Fayette E. Pease, Republican, of Wyoming county, has introduced a bill permitting game protectors, rangers or state policemen to kill any dog pursuing deer in the Catskill and Adirondack state parks at any time. The bill has been sent to the Assembly conservation committee for discussion.

Missing From His Home at Rosendale Since Saturday

A general alarm was broadcast shortly before noon today for Edward P. Burns, a foreman for the Conde-Nast Publishing Co., Greenwich, Conn., who disappeared from his home at the top of Rosendale hill about 7 o'clock Saturday night.

Mrs. Burns, who with her son, lives at the Rosendale home, informed the sheriff's office of her husband's disappearance Sunday, but at that time asked that nothing be done about the matter until she had made further inquiries. This morning, learning that Burns was still missing, Sheriff Molyneaux and Deputy Sheriff Vredenburg, with Trooper Reilly, started an investigation into the matter.

They learned that Burns had arrived at his home in Rosendale about 7 o'clock Saturday night, coming from Stamford, Conn., where he rooms. Shortly afterward he left the house to drive to the store at Tillson. He failed to return and up to this noon his family had received no word of him. Investigation disclosed that he had not visited any of the nearby stores. Following the investigation this morning the sheriff broadcast the general alarm.

Burns is described as a man of 62 years, 5 feet seven inches in height and weighing 160 pounds. He has black hair and complexion is dark. At the time he left the house he wore an Oxford gray suit, blue shirt and had no necktie on. He wore a pair of black Oxfords and carried a gold watch, with chain, to which was attached a pencil.

Mr. Burns drove a 1937 Packard coupe, black convertible. It bore a Connecticut license, 76-78. Anyone having information as to the whereabouts of the missing man is asked to communicate with Sheriff Abram F. Molyneaux at Kingston.

By-Pass Ordinance to Be Aired March 9; Aldermen Debate Business with City

Conway Appraisal Commission Bill Is His "Own Baby"

The bill introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman J. Edward Conway of Ulster county relative to re-appointment of commissioners of appraisal in City of New York water project condemnation cases would amend the law so that commissioners of appraisal could not be re-appointed when the original term of their office expires until three years after completion of their first term. This amendment is sponsored by Assemblyman Conway and before introducing the amendment Mr. Conway said he did not discuss the matter with the corporation counsel's office of the city of New York or with the members of law department of the city of New York.

Mr. Conway said that a recent dispatch from Albany inferred that the matter had been discussed with the law department of the city of New York and that the change had been brought to the attention of the corporation counsel's office prior to offering the amendment. This was an error, he said, and stated the bill was his "own baby" and he accepted full responsibility for the bill which would in his opinion work for the benefit of the owners of land taken by condemnation and also would be fair to the city of New York.

Reason for Measure

"Before introducing the amendment I went into the question very thoroughly and came to the conclusion that in the best interest of the property owners it would be best that commissioners did not succeed themselves. The matter was not discussed with the corporation counsel's office of the city of New York or with the law department employes. I did not ask them for their opinion in the matter and they expressed none," said Mr. Conway in talking to a Freeman reporter.

"Amendments to the administrative code were discussed by me with the city's legal staff and the provisions were given much study and consideration by both myself and the city's legal staff. However, I did not consult or advise with the corporation counsel or his staff before the amendment was offered which if adopted will prevent the re-appointment of commissioners of appraisal on completion of their term. This matter was not in the bill which was discussed with the city and was not among the matters upon which we agreed," he said.

Wants No Influence

Mr. Conway pointed out that commissioners of appraisal might be influenced in their action if re-appointment was at stake. He said he believed that no commissioner should succeed himself within a period of three years after the completion of the first term.

Approval or disapproval of that opinion Mr. Conway said had not been sought from the city of New York prior to his presenting the amendment which he said he was sponsoring. The inference that he had asked the opinion of the city prior to offering his bill, he said was unfounded.

With the City of New York engaged in a great expansion of its water works system in Ulster county at the present time the matter of compensation to property owners in the affected areas is an extremely important one.

Four Petitions, Containing 161 Names, Filed by Residents in Protest Against Closing By-Pass to Northbound Trucks During Evening Hours.

DONNARUMMA CHARGES

Sixth Ward Alderman Attacks Second Ward Colleague Charging Business With City to Amount of $56,000.

Heated debate and name calling marked the session of the Common Council Tuesday evening, subjects of the oratory being removal of the present restrictions on use of the by-pass during evening hours for northbound trucks and investigation of city officials doing private business with the city. The former question resulted in calling of a public hearing on March 9, at which time the by-pass residents and those on routes to which traffic has been diverted, will have an opportunity to state their views on the ordinance. The latter question, prompted by a communication from the mayor warning city officials to refrain from private business with the city government, resulted in much talk but little action.

The council reached the first decision Tuesday evening at the regular monthly meeting which was attended by some 100 residents of East Chester street and Foxhall avenue. Petitions containing 161 names asking that the traffic regulation be rescinded were filed with the council and referred without comment to the traffic control committee.

By-Pass Petitions

Four petitions, all similar, were filed with the council. Two of the petitions were signed by 82 residents of East Chester street, and two of the petitions by 79 residents of Foxhall avenue, making a total of 161 signers. The petitions asked the council to rescind the traffic regulation prohibiting truck travel at night in a northerly direction on East Chester street. The petitions were referred to the traffic control committee.

Injunction Papers

Henry Van Wezemaal, who operates the By-pass Diner filed papers in an injunction suit to restrain the city authorities from enforcing the East Chester street traffic regulation. The papers were referred to Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin.

Two Damage Claims

Oscar Beach of Cottekill, through his attorney, Lloyd R. LeFever, filed a damage claim of $5,000 against the city to recover for alleged personal injuries sustained in a fall in the John street parking grounds. The claim was referred to the corporation counsel and finance committee.

Madeline Woerner of 52 Murray street, through her attorney, Louis G. Bruhn, filed a claim for $5,000 against the city to recover for alleged personal injuries sustained in a fall on Prince street on January 7. This claim also was referred to the corporation counsel and finance committee.

Donnarumma Charges.

City Clerk E. J. Dempsey read a communication from Mayor C. J. Helselman that had been sent to the heads of all city departments calling attention to the rule that no city official could do business with the city.

As the city clerk finished reading the mayor's communication Minority Leader Donnarumma jumped to his feet and said that he believed the mayor was right in his contention that any one holding public office in the city government had no right to do business with the city, but he had made an investigation, he said, and found that Alderman Jacob Tremper had written $56,000 in insurance for the education board.

Tremper Replies.

Alderman Tremper said that "In as much as the gentleman from the Sixth ward has mentioned my name it might behoove me to defend my position. It seems to me a crime that this little byplay has grown so personal and absolutely uncalled for. In defence of myself and the Republican administration that has given and is giving the city the highest type of a sound business administration and in reply to the small-minded gentleman from the Sixth ward I would like to explain that during the time when I became a member of the common council any insurance business that might have been done was done in the name of DeWitt, Tremper & Osterhoudt, Inc.

"I was not a member of that corporation; I held no office in it nor was I employed by the corporation." Alderman Tremper said that he held a broker's license and did his brokerage business through the corporation.

Truck Driver Is Fined on By-pass Violation Tuesday

While the common council Tuesday evening were deciding to hold a public hearing on the East Chester street traffic regulation prohibiting heavy truck traffic moving north over that street between the hours of 10 o'clock in the evening and 8 o'clock in the morning, Officers Edward Leonard and Murphy were making the first arrest for a violation of the provision.

Carl Calkins of Buffalo, driving a Brockway trailer truck, was the truck driver arrested for violation of that provision of the traffic code. Mr. Calkins spent the night in the county jail and this morning on his plea of guilty was fined $2 in police court by Judge Matthew V. Cahill.

Mr. Calkins explained to the police last evening that this was his first job of driving a truck since the first of the year. When arrested all he had was half a dollar in his pocket. He said he expected to receive money by Western Union from the firm by whom he is employed.

Judge Cahill in imposing the fine said he would be lenient as he was taking into consideration the fact that Calkins was working on his first job.

Dominic Perry of 253 East Union street was arrested Tuesday on a charge of operating a car without license plates. His hearing was set for Thursday morning in police court.

Held in $10,000 Bail

New York, March 2 (AP)—Ten Broeck M. Terhune, 50, socially prominent real estate broker, was arraigned on a jewel theft charge today and held in $10,000 bail for hearing.

Niemoeller Trial Ends

Berlin, March 2 (AP)—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, for five years a zealous leader of Protestant church opposition to German government regulation, was sentenced today to seven months imprisonment but time already spent in jail cancelled out the sentence.

He must go to jail, however, for three months unless he pays a $600 fine for speaking disparagingly of leading personages of the Reich.

Time already served was held also to have paid a $200 fine for violating decrees stipulating usages of the pulpit.

A great crowd milled around the courthouse from early morning before sentence was pronounced on the militant German Evangelical Church pastor, who went to trial February 7 on charges of inciting to disobedience against the state and violating pulpit regulations.

Invited to the courtroom were a hundred guests including the pastor's three children who were on a front bench, 50 foreign press representatives and 90 ordinary spectators who were lucky enough to find available seats.

The court, after reading its verdict, declared, "as the public security may be endangered by public reading of the court's reasons for the verdict, the public will now be excluded again."

There remained then only representatives of the justice, propaganda and church ministries, as well as representatives of the Confessional Synod.

The pastor was tried before a secret tribunal, after his bitter protest in a 45-minute speech to the three presiding judges on the opening day.

"Why am I here under the accusation of a traitor?" he cried. "I've done nothing to justify such a charge."

The 46-year-old minister for years was an outspoken campaigner against Fuehrer Hitler's efforts to Nazify religion in Germany. This campaign ended with his arrest July 1.

PRAISE FOR ULSTER

The Poughkeepsie Eagle-News editorially extends congratulations to Ulster county on the great success of the beauty contest held in connection with the coming Apple Blossom Festival. Captioned, "Cooperation Does It" the editorial points out that the success of the preliminary plans for the festival is largely due to the fact that every organization and influential individual in Ulster county is solidly sold on the project and is doing its utmost to work together and insure the success of the ambitious program that has been undertaken. It also expresses the hope that Dutchess county and city leaders will take a leaf from Ulster's book and begin to get acquainted and start pulling together.

If this same spirit of general cooperation upon the part of all Ulster county residents is continued, the success of the festival will be assured. An attitude of "let the other fellow do it" will result in failure. There will be other undertakings before the staging of the festival and it is hoped that support in even larger measure will be given by all residents in a position to do so. Groups, representing the varied aspects of life in Ulster, include agricultural, art, business, church, farm, fraternal, historical, horticultural, service, sportsmen's, patriotic and women's. In order to carry out their part in the program, these groups will need assistance and we trust that they will receive it in generous quantities.

The tentative program for the festival, which will be held May 6, 7 and 8, is as follows: World's Fair Day on May 6; New York and New England Governors' Day on May 7, and Church Day on Sunday, May 8.

PROGRAM-WRECKING

A campaign has been started to have the authors of radio scripts named on the program, as announcers and masters of ceremonies and performers and sponsors are already named. The script writers object to being anonymous in the midst of such a welter of publicity.

It is only just that the authors should have credit for their contribution to an entertaining program, but a listener cannot help feeling that this personal mention fad is going too far. Some radio critics feel so, too. They point out that there are already too many "plugs" interrupting the programs. Comedians mention each other, performers mention their other appearances on stage or screen, advertising is overdone.

In the legitimate theatre this sort of thing is confined to the printed program. It would be highly objectionable if recited across the footlights before the play and between acts. Why not work out some arrangement for carrying such information and publicity in radio bulletins issued to all radio owners? As much of it as is genuine news already appears in the radio columns of some newspapers. But if the public is to have artistic radio entertainment, and broadcasters are to have an interested and pleased audience, there will have to be less, not more, "plugging" on the air.

JOBS INSTEAD OF CHILDREN

If it were not for immigration from other states, some of our states would be in a bad way. California, especially. According to Dr. Paul Popence, director of the Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, California cities have the lowest birth rates in America. In San Francisco, he reports, the "net reproduction rate" is only 48 per cent of the children necessary to take the places of people who die. In Pasadena it is 51 per cent and in Los Angeles 53 per cent.

There may be various reasons for this, but Dr. Popence attributes the low reproduction rate chiefly to competition of women with men, which results in fewer marriages and a higher divorce rate. "Women have a right to compete with men", he concludes, "but the two sexes should not be educated in such a way that they don't know how to do anything else." He might suggest a course of education that would result either in more marriages or more non-competitive jobs.

BROBDINGNAGIAN FEAST

Statistics from that incredible political reception given at Washington by Indiana people, to introduce the fellow-Hoosier they are booming for president, make startling reading.

Number of persons attending, 3,141.

Number of rooms reserved at the hotel by Indianans, more than 40 suites.

Size of buffet supper table, 48 feet by nine feet.

Number of waiters helping serve from buffet table, 26.

Estimate of cost of food on table as it stood when guests arrived, $1,800.

Estimate of entire cost of supper, including replacements, $3,000 to $4,000.

Number of dishes, trays, bowls and other containers of delicacies on buffet table, more than 200.

Table decorated with four silver candelabra and huge floral centerpiece flanked by baskets of other flowers.

Four silver tea and coffee services presided over by sixteen women.

These are not listed, but it is easy to imagine the fleets of cars used to bring the guests, the clothes worn by the 3,141 persons, etc., etc. Clearly, what this country needs to get itself out of the recession is more and better political receptions.

THE SHAPE AND DISEASE.

I have written before about the "shape" of the typical peptic ulcer patient (ulcer of the stomach or of small intestine) as one who was slender with narrow chest and usually underweight. That his nervousness is partly the cause of his ailment is agreed and part of the treatment is to try to have him acquire calmness of spirit and to avoid excitement, anger, or other emotional disturbance. This, as you may remember, is also the treatment for mucous colitis—inflammation of the lining of the large intestine.

The fact that these slender individuals have a shorter small intestine than normal—perhaps five to ten feet less—means also that they do not get the "full" benefit from their food—less surface for absorption of the digested food into the blood. These slender individuals are said to have the greyhound type of build.

What about the other type of build—wide of shoulders, and hips and long body? The individual with the wide long body—the bull dog type—is usually vigorous and strong, with a good appetite, a good digestion, and a small intestine that is often 6 to 10 feet longer than normal. This long intestine means that he is able to get the very last bit of value from the digested food. It is no wonder that he is vigorous and strong and would continue to be that way except for one thing; he is apt to eat too much. The result is that he becomes overweight and puts too much work on various important organs—the heart, the blood-vessels, the kidneys, and the liver. Thus instead of suffering with peptic ulcer or tuberculosis, this wide bull-dog type of individual is more likely to acquire a failing heart, high blood pressure, chronic inflammation of the kidneys—Bright's disease. It is overweight due to this overeating due to a good appetite and good digestion in these individuals with a long, wide body that causes heart and blood vessel disturbances, diabetes, kidney disease and disturbances from liver and gall bladder.

Drs. Hugh L. Bass and Clarence E. Bird at Louisville City Hospital state in the American Journal of Surgery, that in the five year period 1930 to 1935, of 142 cases—124 operations—two-thirds of the bull-dog type of patient were overweight.

Overweight and Underweight.

A splendid booklet by Dr. Barton entitled "Overweight and Underweight" is available. It deals with the subject of your weight as a factor in good health. Do you weigh too much, too little? What do you do to control your weight? Send for this booklet enclosing Ten Cents for each copy desired to cover cost of service and handling. EMPIRE FOR A LADY

BY ALAN LEMAY

SYNOPSIS: Our unexpressed love for a young English girl has kept my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) in tropical Balingong through a Dyak revolt and Malay defeat. Christine Forrester, visioning a great empire here, has made Clyde rajah. Famine strikes and war with the Malays threatens. Christine refuses to leave and the emotional strain tightens. Then we have our first visitor, a Dutch trader on the prowl.

Chapter 38

The Final Break

HE stayed at Balingong four days. When van der Donggen left he presented a gift to each of us. To the rajah and rance he gave each an ivory figurine, very beautifully carved; Christine's was of the Chinese goddess Kuan-Yin. Although the presentation was made with great grace, I thought his fat fingers lingered a little bit, caressingly, on the ivory as he passed them over. It was as if he hardly liked to leave these lovely things here in Balingong, to be looted by a bunch of Dyaks after we all were destroyed.

He had not neglected to provide a gift for me, too — some black looking stuff in a bottle, intended for pouring in snake bites. That man could show a strong grasp upon essentials.

Besides bringing us the relief of a breath of air from outside, van der Donggen accomplished two things. He innocently inspired the Rajah Clyde with a tremendous new burst of ambition; and he frightened Christine.

During van der Donggen's stay Clyde kept the man up most of the night, drinking Dutch brandy and smoking long Dutch cigars, both of which van der Donggen supplied. He was getting something from van der Donggen that he had never got from him before. News of the island trade, of shipments and rates of exchange, had always been of vital interest to Clyde, but what he was getting now was a viewpoint.

It was automatically a part of van der Donggen's mind to think ahead, in terms of not only his own life, but those of his sons and his grandsons. He had almost nothing to say about future plans; yet the outlook of years ahead unconsciously colored almost every word he spoke. When van der Donggen was gone, Clyde got out his maps.

He was looking beyond Balingong now; he no longer considered that its development would be enough for his ultimate purposes. If he could develop Balingong he could develop Sumantang. Once we got started, he declared, every year would see our borders extending. In the end he would retire the fat Sultan of Saremba upon a pension, and keep him as a show-piece. Once fully developed, Sumantang would produce more rubber than Java, more hemp than Luzon.

All this he planned while we sat without income in that stinking river, surrounded by increasingly hostile Malays, and our own sick, grumbling seamen; with nothing to show except the paper which gave us a kind of rented authority to run this hurrah nest if we could!

"That's wonderful," I said. "What you really need now is some large flags. Something that will look tasty when we tow you around on a barge."

"Yes—I suppose we will need one. That'll come later."

I stared at him; it seemed to me he was out of his head. "I have the flag already designed," I said. "It displays two apes, one pursuant and one flecant, on a field of boiled rice. In the upper corner, a postage stamp, with simple directions for mailing."

He grunted, "You talk like a fool."

Spheres Of Influence

CHRISTINE was bewildered as I was by Clyde's attitude. She kept worrying about van der Donggen. "That man is astonished and alarmed," she declared. "He didn't believe you when you told him that you have no connection with any power, except the Sultan of Saremba. He thinks you're working for the British East India Company. He may even think that you're employed in some indirect way by the British Foreign office."

"Let him," said Clyde.

"But he'll make representations to his government. You know how sensitive the Dutch are about their sphere of influence. Those people are looking 100 years ahead. They have a hold on things that they can't possibly use, and even beyond that they are trying to keep other countries from getting a foothold where they cannot. They see plainly what we can't make England see — that the nations must get now what they're going to use later—or when they can use it they won't be able to get it."

"That's just the point," Clyde insisted, going back to his new refrain. "If we don't get a claim on these other islands—"

"But Balingong is ready now." Christine kept at him. "We can show a deed from the Sultan of Saremba. We can even show a framework of government. That's all we can expect to show. You know as well as I do that unless we get support we cannot go on much longer. This is the time support must be found. We have to make our appeal to Singapore before the Dutch ambassador makes his appeal to London."

"London has nothing to do with my ship," Clyde said. "I'm not even in the so-called English sphere of influence. I'm an American ship in the Dutch sphere. London has nothing to say."

"That's all right for you," Christine argued. "My vessel is cleared from a British port under the British flag. I could be tried at Singapore for making war on a friendly state—or—or something."

"You are under the protection of the Rajah of Balingong," Clyde thundered. "Damnation! We'll change your nationality."

I could not make out then whether or not Clyde believed many of his own wild dreams. I think now that he did not believe them, nor even pretend to himself that he did. I think now that his plan for empire was the recourse of a harassed man beset by innumerable difficulties. He could not have gone on as he did if he had let his mind rest upon the darkness, the malignancy, the tedium of the years ahead.

One more month passed, and it was a month of torrential rains. Some of the many unrelated things we had to do every day were becoming easier, because they were now dropping into repetitive routines. Sick Dyaks were handled in one way, and tribal quarrels another way, and so on down the laundry list. But the famine continued to tighten, and with it our trouble with the Malays.

Like Killer-Whales

WE were beginning to think that for the Malays to come with force of arms, openly at war, could hardly be so bad for us as that they should simply continue to live among us, pursuing their customary way of living.

Of all the races in the islands, the Malays were the most cleanly, the most advanced in culture, the most strict in those morals which they respected. But they were as predatory as killer-whales, and never could be anything else; even their religion was one of violence.

And we could not rid ourselves of these people. The Rajah Clyde's authority in Balingong was legally held by the supposed sufferance of the Sultan of Saremba. We could not prevent the sultan's people from going and coming as they chose without new agreements altogether.

We could only go on holding them in check as well as we could, while Rentongen held ominously aloof, no longer appealing to the rajah. And from Saremba we heard no single word, either of confirmation or objection!

It could not go on forever. In mid-October the final break came between Clyde and Rentongen.

I suppose we had known from the first that the raj of Balingong was not going to be large enough to hold both the white rajah and Mantusen's Shah Bandar. The break between the two was as inevitable as the eternal lashing torrent of the rain. Yet when it came it was as sharp and quickly over as the stroke of a kris.

A party of Dyaks, very pathetic in their emanciation, one morning came to Clyde from far up in the headwaters of the Siderong. They had a complaint against the Malays, of course. No one ever came to us who did not. In addition to whatever other troubles they had, there were always some bitter complaints against the Malays. But this complaint was a new one, even though I had seen it coming, and dreaded it for a long time.

A party of Malay traders had maneuvered a village into their debt, by no more intricate device than simply forcing them to take goods which they did not want. The Dyaks, of course, were unable to pay; none of them could pay anything any more.

To satisfy the debt, therefore, the Malays had taken from the village seven young women and one small child, who were now possessed as slaves; and, unless there was intercession, these would be bought and sold as slaves for the rest of their lives.

When Clyde heard this story his head bent wearily, and he rubbed his eyes with his fingers. The Malays had gone too far with him at last, and he could neither ignore this thing nor turn back. I remember the long, long pause, filled with the rush and the rattle of the wind, while I waited for Clyde to tell me what I was to do.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

New York—Fifty years ago eight out of ten Americans bitten by poisonous snakes died. Now, out of a few hundred bitten each year, there seldom is a death.

It is mostly due to the fact that a Brooklyn boy was walking through a swamp about 40 years ago and saw two snakes crawl out of sight under some rubbish.

That sight is what first interested Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, the famous snake man of the Bronx Zoo, in snakes. He cannot explain why, he says, but the fact remains. He told the story when the American Institute of the City of New York gave him a fellowship.

Young Ditmars not only became interested in snakes, but in poisonous ones.

When the Bronx Zoo opened its first snake house, Ditmars had a better collection than the Zoo. So he was made curator.

Since then he has been a leading spirit in research on snake venoms, collaborating with scientists from all over the world. Serum for snake bite was the first practical result. It saves lives.

Ditmars' fellow scientists have gone on to discover, in snake venom, an effective substance to control hemorrhage and a painkiller which in some cases is as effective as morphine, but not habit-forming.

New State Leaders

Three new members were added to the list of the various superintendents that have charge of the activities for the New York State Christian Endeavor Union. James F. Hargrave of West Sand Lake is head of the citizenship department; Eugene G. Alhart of 39 Culver Parkway, Rochester, has charge of publications; and Mrs. Lela Coutter of 99 Hill street, Tonawanda, is the new leader of the missionary group.

Foreign Missions

At the weekly meeting of the First Dutch Reformed Society, the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool led an interesting discussion on the subject, "Should We Support Foreign Missions?" A business session followed the meeting, and it was decided to hold a cake sale at Wonderly's store, Wall street, on March 12.

New Society Forms

Word comes from Hurley that a Christian Endeavor Society has been organized in the Reformed Church. A meeting was held at the close of the prayer service Thursday evening and the following officers were elected: L. C. Dixon, president; Peter Palen, vice-presidena; and Claude Palen, secretary-treasurer. President Dixon has long been identified with the Christian Endeavor movement in Ulster county and is well-known to all Endeavorers, having been one of the mainstays of the county union organization for many years.

New Paltz Speaker

The New Paltz Society's program Sunday evening was in charge of Miss Helen Blocker, vice-president of the county union. A feature of the evening was an address by Miss Helen Wisser, who has lived in Japan for the past five years.

The Comforter Group

The Comforters held their regular meeting Sunday evening with the program given over to a talk by Robert L. Sisson, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. A short session followed the prayer meeting. The regular business meeting will be Friday evening, March 11.

First Baptist Activities

Sunday evening the Albany Avenue Baptist group held a discussion on "The Meaning of Prayer." Miss Alice Hunter was the leader. Harold Brigham, accompanied by Mrs. Lester Decker, sang "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer." After the meeting, four small groups were formed under the leadership of Mrs. Chester Greene, Russell Broughton, Maurice Safford, and Miss Alice Hunter, to hold separate discussions on the topic. Each group, after a 20-minute deliberation, reported to the entire society assembled together. The usual Christian Endeavor prayer meeting will be eliminated next Sunday as the society will have charge of the evening church service. President Francis Skerritt will preside over the service which will consist of some special music and two short talks, "Take My Cross," by Nelson H. Lewis of the county union, and "A New Earth," by Miss Ruth Koonz, program chairman of the First Baptist Society.

Will Elect Officers

The Hobby Club of Bethany Society will meet tonight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Shultis. A delegation from the Rosendale Hobby Club is expected to join with the Bethany group. The boys of the Hobby Club have secured 200 apple tree branches. Vases of these branches in full bloom are gracing the altar at Bethany Chapel and certainly make one think that spring is indeed, "just around the corner". On Thursday evening the Bethany seniors will hold the annual meeting and election of officers. Reports will be given which are expected to show that this first year as a Christian Endeavor Society has had good results. The meeting will be followed by a short consecration meeting. On Saturday at the chapel, the young people will conduct a cake sale. Bethany Society and Rosendale Society will unite in an Easter pageant to be given during Holy Week. Rehearsal for this pageant will begin shortly. Bethany is looking forward to a visit from the county officers to install the society leaders who will be elected this week.

Rosendale Activities

The Rosendale young people are somewhat richer because of a cake sale which was conducted by them on Saturday afternoon. According to reports there are several places where this newly accumulated wealth will be placed to advance the good work of the society. The next devotional meeting will be held Sunday evening, March 6, at 7:15 o'clock. The attendance at the devotional meetings has been excellent. A "pot-luck" supper will be the big event Thurday evening. The young people will unite with Bethany group to put on an Easter pageant with a very large cast. They have also united with Bethany Chapel to put on the next County Union devotional meeting which will take place at Bethany on Easter Sunday night. The first issue of "The Good Humor" will make its appearance at the pot luck supper. The members of this society are swinging their arms these days, not because of cold weather, but they are getting in shape to take Bethany Society for three games of dart ball the latter part of this month.

ST. REMY

St. Remy, Feb. 28.—Sunday services: Sunday School at 1:30 p. m. Church service 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. C. P. Muyskens will bring the message. All are welcome to these services.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The best story of the week is about that little Jap who plays the part of a valet in the new Guild show, "Wine of Choice." It is a small part, hardly more than a spear-carrier's chore, yet after the first trial performance in an out-of-town city a shower of flowery epistles, praising the Jap's "inspired performance" descended in the management's lap.

Somewhat puzzled, the Guild authorities read the letters, dismissed them from their mind, and moved on to another city. Next morning a dossier of even more laudatory notes was delivered.

Here was indeed an unusual circumstance. The little Jap's part was so minor as to constitute no more than a "bit." It certainly was not calculated to elicit a deluge of "fan mail."

THEN the show moved into Philadelphia. As is frequently the case with trial performances, the authors were traveling with the show, studying each performance carefully, frequently rewriting lines and scenes.

At the last minute they decided to eliminate the little Jap entirely and the curtain went up with the "valet" written out of the script. Nevertheless next morning the mailman lugged a salvo of "bravo" mail into the theater, complimenting the Guild on its astute casting and calling attention again and again to the wonderful performance of the valet.

With that, everybody went into hysterics. Those letters were explained. The valet, anxious to further his theatrical career, was sponsoring his own fan-mail service.

Epilog: He's back in the show. The authors and directors felt that such enthusiasm shouldn't go unrewarded. "After all," as Guy Kibbee says, "you can't blame a guy for trying."

ANOTHER instance of circumstances proving a boon to an aspiring player was the mishap that befell Betty Lancaster in the office of a producer one afternoon. The play was "Gentlemen of the Press." When Miss Lancaster applied for the ingenue's role it was felt she was not the type desired.

George Abbott, who directed the play, and Mark Barron, one of its authors, were in the office.

However, as she went out the door, which was glass, there was a sudden crash, and a part of the glass fell on Miss Lancaster's arm.

Noting her sweet manner and the sporting way she accepted the mishap, Abbott and Barron hastily reconsidered their earlier judgment and signed her to a contract.

The Lion's Complaint

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"NO DOUBT," the lion said, "you have been talking to the tiger. I'll admit he is a sensible beast. And I'll admit, too, that it is difficult to find out whether he is bigger or heavier than I am, or whether I am the bigger of the two. In such ways tigers and lions are evenly matched.

"It is true that he never goes out into the sunshine, but we do not make a steady habit of it. There are times when we think we can do our marketing there better than in the forests. Probably it is not wise of us to ever run risks. But I will tell you why I say we are wrong no matter what we do—wrong in the opinion of people. I'm not at all sure," and the lion smiled with great dignity, "that I care so very much for their opinion.

"For listen to me," the lion continued. "If we go through the forests quietly without roaring, without putting out our chests and raising our heads high they say we are cowardly and that we skulk.

"If we run risks they say we are foolish. It is foolish to run risks but sometimes we must run them—the mother for her cubs and we for our mates. Is it foolish to run risks if we must? Is it foolish to go quietly through the forests? Should we let everyone know that we are there so we may be game for them?

"The lion has little chance against bullets. He must do the best he can. Oh, it is becoming dark."

"It is almost night-time. I am going back to tell my friends some of the ways of wild animals," said Willy Nilly.

"It is going to storm," roared the lion. "It is going to storm, storm, STORM!"

HOLLYWOOD—Dopey, brightest star in that animated constellation, "Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs" had his ups and downs just like any one else before film fame came to him

Nearly three years ago, Walt Disney's animators started work on Dopey, trying to give him the combined character of four comics: Harry Langdon, Stan Laurel, Buster Keaton and Harpo Marx.

Here's how Dopey was born

DOPEY IN 1935 was no great shakes as a comedian but he had good stuff in him—the best qualities of four proved laugh-provokers.

DOPEY, THE STAR, is described around the studio as "three heads high, with slant blue eyes, a pug nose, large ears that react to his moods, and misfit clothes that droop on his runty, impish body." The audience adjective is "adorable."

Factory Sales of Autos Decrease

Stocks opened off yesterday, gained through the day and closed with the industrials up 0.85 point to 130.47 on the Dow-Jones average. The rail averages showed a gain of 0.12 point, to 30.02; utilities were ahead 0.99, to 19.91. Volume was comparatively light, total being 530,000 shares. Corporate bonds were irregular; governments firm. Foreign markets quiet.

With operations sharply curtailed since the first of the year, present indications are that unless there is a sharp seasonal expansion in factory sales this month most auto manufacturers will show a sizable loss for the first quarter. General Motors, apparently is about the only company that has operated in the black the past two months. The following table shows estimated factory sales, by units, during the first two months of this year compared with last year:

	1938	1937
General Motors	190,600	178,235
Chrysler Corp.	60,000	225,000
Ford	160,000	240,000
Hudson	12,000	23,500
Nash Motors	5,900	18,000
Packard	8,000	23,198
Studebaker	5,700	15,706

The ICC has adjourned Rock Island reorganization hearings until June 28.

Foreign oil companies operating in Mexico yesterday hinted that they would curtail oil field activity drastically, if not cease operations altogether, as a result of the ruling of the Mexican supreme court. The court held that the companies must obey the federal board of arbitration and conciliation's award of a $7,220,000 annual wage increase. Court denied an injunction to restrain application of the order. Companies say they are "unable" to pay the increase.

Companies reporting net income for 1937 included:

American Sugar Refining $4,143,138, or $2.20 a share in 1937 compared with $4,352,563, or $2.67 a share in 1936, Simmons Co. (preliminary report), $3,314,251, vs. $4,003,306; Beech-Nut Packing, $2,741,203, or $6.26 a share, vs. $2,709,039, or $6.19 a share; J. J. Newberry, $2,255,454, or $5.27 a share, vs. $2,570,286, or $6.03 a share. National Gypsum shows 33 cents a share compared with 61 cents in 1936.

General line of sales of American Can for the first two months of this year are reported about five per cent under a year ago.

About 3,000 workers returned to work at Phoenix and Holeproof hosiery plants in Milwaukee yesterday after voting down proposals to strike in protest against wage reductions; 5,000 workers voted to return to work in Philadelphia.

New York, March 2 (AP).—The stock market loitered indecisively today after small offerings had dragged leading shares down fractions to more than a point.

Near the final hour trading slowed almost to a standstill. Speculators were reluctant to follow the market on the dip and some stocks rallied feebly from the day's lows. A few shares held moderate gains.

Transfers were at the rate of about 450,000 shares.

Speculation marked time while traders looked to Washington and industrial centers for significant news. Selling, brokers said, was restrained by hope of a spring upturn from the present low levels of factory production. At the same time curtailment of public buying power from unemployment, dividend cuts and omissions and scattered salary cuts dampened optimism.

Dealings were about the quietest of recent weeks, with only 170,000 shares changing hands on the "big board" in the forenoon.

In other markets watchful waiting also seemed to be prevailing attitude. Commodities generally held to a narrow course, although wheat sagged. Corporate bonds drew a little better support than stocks.

Possibility the tax bill would undergo more extensive revision on the Senate side than in the House was widely discussed in financial quarters. But traders seemed content to wait for tangible developments.

Pershing Enjoys Breakfast, Sits Up In Bed to Do So

Tucson, Ariz., March 2 (AP).—General John J. Pershing, who a week ago was believed dying, awoke today from a fairly restful sleep, enjoyed breakfast propped up in bed, and called for his barber.

"The immediate danger appears to have passed," said Dr. Roland Davison in the first bulletin of the day from the bedside.

"The possibility of future complications from the heart or kidneys can not be minimized," he added. "If these can be avoided, however, convalescence over a protracted period should restore him to a reasonable state of health."

Dr. Davison said the first time the doctors went in to make an examination this morning, the 77-year-old World War commander was being bathed and the second time he was eating breakfast.

The breakfast consisted of grapefruit and cereal. The general refused to permit one of the nurses to feed him, insisting on doing it himself.

The physicians indicated the deciding point in the general's campaign to recovery likely would be reached tonight.

Steel Work Begun On New School

Steel workers on the new central school building began the erection of steel on Monday. While cold weather prevented the masons from working the steel workers started the erection of the framework. Tuesday with moderating weather the laying of brick was continued and the erection of the steel frame continued with a considerable portion of the steel floor supports being laid.

Laying of the water and sewer lines from O'Reilly street is also being rushed and this work has progressed a considerable distance from the street toward the building.

The fill which was made to Andrew street from materials taken from the excavation is now completed through to the building and is being used to deliver materials to the job. Much of the steel is now on the scene and no delay, other than that which comes from bad weather, is expected to hamper the work. In the construction of the building two local products are being used, brick and cement. Rose Brothers are supplying the brick for the walls and the Century Cement Company of Rosendale is supplying natural Rosendale cement for the brick-work. As work progresses additional men will be placed at work. At the present time the W. W. Kingston Company, general contractors, are employing all local help except the steel workers who cannot be supplied locally.

Plans for this project have been in progress during the past few weeks and it is hoped that work will be commenced this spring.

Plans for a social affair and playlet in celebration of the Purim festival will be outlined.

A cordial invitation to attend this meeting is extended to all women interested.

Levine May Give New Broadcast To Boy's Captors

New Rochelle, N. Y., March 2 (AP).—Struggling between fear and hope, the father of 12-year-old Peter Levine, missing since last Thursday, today was reported considering another radio appeal to "those who may be holding my boy."

While the father, Murray Levine, New York lawyer, remained secluded in his suburban home here, an official, who has kept a close but aloof watch on the case, said a second radio plea might be made if an expected contact with kidnapers fails to materialize.

Fear for the boy's well-being mounted as time passed without bringing any clue to his whereabouts, or any word from abductors who reputedly were holding him for $60,000 ransom.

Over the telephone, Levine reiterated a hope that the authorities would leave him free to negotiate with anyone who might have knowledge of his son's whereabouts.

As to rumors of an imminent contact, he said there were "hundreds and thousands of rumors."

Threat Reported

Rabbi Abraham Nowak, a friend of the family, was reported by the New York Daily News to have received a note demanding $30,000 within 48 hours under threat of death to the boy, who disappeared after leaving school last Thursday afternoon.

Efforts to reach the rabbi were unsuccessful. His wife said he was out of town on an unexplained mission but disclaimed any knowledge as to whether he had become an intermediary for the Levines.

Mysterious automobiles continued to come and go at the tightly curtained Levine home. One of them, bearing New Jersey license plates, was listed in the name of Herman B. Levine, of West Englewood, N. J.

REGENTS CRITICISE COUNTRY SCHOOLS

New York, March 2 (AP)—A report by a special committee of the Board of Regents today criticized New York State's district rural school system as "antiquated and inefficient" and recommended extension of the central rural school plan to insure "equal educational advantages to all."

The report, summarizing a two-year inquiry into the cost and character of public education in New York, was released by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of General Electric Co., and chairman of the regents' special committee.

Dr. Luther Gulick of Columbia University, who directed the investigation, in the report cited "the little red schoolhouse"—one-teacher schools—as the most backward feature of the present system.

"Our school system does not belong to the horse-and-buggy era," he said, "it goes back to the day of the painted Indian."

He said the state had 400 one-teacher school with fewer than four pupils each and 1,700 more with between five and nine pupils.

The report proposed a temporary five-member state commission to direct eight regional school districts committees, one in each of the non-city judicial districts of the state, in the consolidation of one-teacher schools under the central rural school plan.

DANGEROUS FLOOD CONDITIONS IN WEST

Los Angeles, Calif., March 2 (AP)—One of the most severe storms in recent years brought dangerous flood conditions to Southern California today.

City and interurban traffic in many instances was halted as the streets and highways were transformed into torrents.

Houses were reported to be in a precarious condition in Santa Monica canyon in suburban Los Angeles. Byron Porter telephoned the Santa Monica Daily Outlook he was in the second story of his home with no way of getting out.

Various games and indoor sports will be engaged in at future meetings and the club is making a drive to interest the men of the church in greater activity in the club. Names of several new members were proposed.

After the regular business meeting had been brought to a close the members and their guests enjoyed an evening of fun, after which refreshments were served.

Urges New Paltz To Back Festival At Legion Meeting

Addressing the sixth annual social and get-together of the New Paltz American Legion, Tuesday night, Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, of Kingston, urged the Legionnaires to cooperate in making their community prominent during the Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival to be held during May.

"It is up to each and every individual to help his community capitalize on this chance to popularize Ulster county," said the mayor, "and I hope New Paltz is busy with committees for the event.

"I recommend that New Paltz stress its rich historical background, and gain the full benefit from the festival."

Edwin R. Curtis, past county commander of the American Legion, was in charge of arrangements for the social, which was attended by approximately 70 ex-servicemen and friends in the hall of Sullivan-Schafer Post.

Last night's program included a roast Virginia ham supper, with all the trimmin's. As toastmaster after the meal, Legionaire Curtis introduced Mayor Heiselman and other speakers.

Nazis Demand Austria Modify Vatican Relations

Graz, Austria, March 2 (AP).—Nazi leaders in this center of Austrian Nazidom advanced a demand today that the traditionally Catholic nation modify its relations with the Vatican.

"The concordat must be changed," they said, as the Nazi-inclined minister of interior, Arthur Seysz-Inquart, continued efforts to mollify the excited national Socialists.

Handbills assailing the church were distributed. They did not, however, ask specific changes in the concordat or set forth the Nazi reason for wishing to alter church-state relations.

Seysz-Inquart, whose appointment to the Austrian cabinet last month was approved by Germany's Fuehrer Hitler, came here to the welcome of an estimated 20,000 Nazis who paraded noisily through the city last night by torchlight. Police and soldiers did not interfere.

Soviet Defendent Lodges Denial

Moscow, March 2 (AP)—A defendant who desperately protested his innocence of treason charges against him today interjected a dramatic note into the opening of the trial of 21 fallen Soviet leaders. He was N. N. Krestinsky, former assistant commissar of foreign affairs.

The state produced alleged confessions of his 20 co-defendants to spying for foreign powers in plots to dismember the Soviet union and to terroristic murders of prominent Soviet citizens.

The indictment also quoted at length from an alleged confession by Krestinsky, which said he had entered into a treasonable plot with General Hans Van Seekt, German military leader, at the behest of the exiled Leon Trotsky.

But Krestinsky repudiated this confession and sharp attempts by the prosecution to shake his repudiation failed. His stout defense under grilling so agitated him he had to halt while he took a tablet for his nerves.

"I did not commit the crimes of which I am accused," he shouted, "I have been a member of the (Communist) party and still consider myself one."

Chief of the defendants were Alexis I. Rykoff, former premier of Russia, and Nikolai Bucharin, former editor of Soviet official newspapers and a close associate of the dead Nikolai Lenin.

"Calm Yourself" At M. E. Church Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock a talented cast from the Clinton Avenue Epworth League will present a hilarious comedy of three acts entitled "Calm Yourself." The play is a most laughable affair, involving ridiculous situations, started when Mrs. Smithie, who has social ambitions, invites Harold Ainsworth, a famous interior decorator, for a week-end under the impression that he is an old admirer of hers. Hoping for a quiet time, he accepts.

Fred Smithie, the husband with many ailments, decides to liven things up and has Harold make love to the women of the household. All goes well until Harold actually falls for Barbara Hanson, an attractive grass widow, who is also a guest. The evening's activities are helped along by Mrs. Wonder and her social tail-light of a husband, who never gets a chance to say "boo" if she is there to say it for him. An enjoyable evening is in store for those who attend.

The cast follows: Harold Ainsworth, Thomas Miller; Barbara Hanson, Lois Stall; Fred Smithie, Donald Hyatt; Fannie Smithie, Bernice Daniels; Lucy Smithie, Marion Davis; Jack Bird, William Stall; George Wonder, Loren Evory; Mrs. Wonder, Pearl DuMond; Evans, Katherine Weeks; Hank, Arthur Crist.

H. S. Student to Leave Town

One of Kingston's younger residents will depart from the city tomorrow morning. Fred Christiana, known to his friends throughout the city as "Bucky" will leave for Union City, N. J., to live with his aunt and uncle. Fred has been residing at 186 O'Neil street with his brother William and their grandmother. School No. 6 was the start for his education and this was just the beginning for a parade of unceasing high marks in his respective studies. Graduating with enviable honors, Fred went to high school where he is now an End Sophmore and still is a student which the authorities at every school likes to have in their midst. Last year he was the alderman-at-large in the student government at the city hall and through his untiring efforts, the common council worked efficiently. Fred is also very active in church work at the Holy Cross where his family are members. It is expected that he will leave on an early morning train for the Skeeter State and although there won't be any fan fare in his honor by his fellow students due to the fact that they will be in school, all friends whether they were closely acquainted with this fine youth or not will indeed express regret for his departure but still hoping that he has a successful time in the southern state.

Presbyterians Fete Pastor Tuesday

More than 125 people attended the ceremony in honor of the Rev. William J. McVey, new pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street, and his wife last night in the upper church rooms in the Ramsey Memorial Building. This was the official reception for Mr. and Mrs. McVey who came to this city in December. Following the program in the upper hall all of the assemblage gathered in the lower assembly where the Ladies' Society served refreshments.

Howard Terwilliger, general chairman of the festivities, opened the program giving the reason for the gathering and welcomed all of the people who were on hand. Later he introduced the opening part of the program which was a rendition of "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" by the string quartet under the direction of Mr. Burhans. Following this the master of ceremonies called upon Mr. Baltz who greeted the congregation and their friends which included many pastors of other churches in the city. Raymond DuBois, featured soloist of the church choir, rendered a solo accompanied at the piano by Miss Edna Merrihew.

Taking over the speaker's rostrum again Howard Terwilliger informed the group that the church's oldest member was among the ones present and asked that he welcome the new pastor and his helpful wife. This oldest member was Nelson Smith who has been with the church over some 60-odd years. Mr. Smith accepted the invitation to say a few words and then proceeded to inform the assemblage of the work of the former churches connected with this particular one. After thanking Nelson Smith for his interesting talk Mr. Terwilliger introduced the Rev. Clarance Brown of the Wurts Street Baptist Church. The Rev. Mr. Brown welcomed Mr. McVey into the Ministerial Association.

Next was another string number by the musicians. It was Minuet in G by Chopin. Following this Mrs. Cora Drake presented Mrs. McVey with a beautiful bouquet of roses on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society.

The Rev. William McVey then thanked the entire assemblage for the reception and predicted new success for the church, if all would cooperate. Mr. Terwilliger read a telegram from Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman who expressed his regret for not being able to attend but he wished the new minister and his wife success.

The master of ceremonies concluded the program after the string quartet had played another selection. Before the group assembled in the lower room Mr. McVey and his wife greeted all.

After all had finished their refreshments which were made possible by the Ladies' Society, Toastmaster Harold Baltz introduced the following who made speeches in behalf of the program: The Rev. Arthur Cole, the Rev. Clarance Brown, the Rev. Arthur Carroll, the Rev. Dr. Frank Seeley, the Rev. Maurice Venno, the Rev. Mr. Steketee, the Rev. C. B. Palmer, Mr. Young and Mr. Scott. After a word of thanks by Mr. McVey, the Rev. Mr. Steketee gave the benediction.

The ladies assisting were: Mrs. Pirie, Mrs. Meeker, Mrs. Church, Mrs. Scheniman, Mrs. Harry Murray and Mrs. Terpening. Through the cooperation of the Christian Endeavor Society the following assisted in serving: Alma Burger, Elnora Burger, Marian and Jeanne DuBois, Evelyn Winfield, Dorothy Kopf, Dorothy Webster, Joyce Burhans, Clifford Van Valkenburgh, Jack Decker, Harry Flowers, Bert Streeter and Irwin Thomas.

TURN TO POETRY AS TO A FRIEND

The poems that have touched you most! Have they faded to a few half-forgotten lines?

A pity not to keep the old favorites. What inspiration you can get from the ones quoted in our illustration!

You remember Longfellow's "Psalm of Life"—"Let us, then, be up and doing—". And the immortal verses from Browning's "Pippa Passes" which end "All's right with the world!"

For everyone, surely, there's a tender memory attached to Payne's "Home, Sweet Home":

"O, give me my lowly thatched cottage again!
The birds singing gayly, that came at my call,—
Give me them,—and the peace of mind, dearer than all!"

And for all there's a message in Ella Wheeler Wilcox's:

"Do you wish the world were happy?
Then remember day by day
Just to scatter seeds of kindness
As you pass along the way—"

Fun in poetry? Lot's of it. Remember Vachel Lindsay's enchanting rhymes which begin:

"The moon's the North Wind's
cooky.
He bites it day by day—"

Again enjoy these poems and other loved-favorites complete in our 40-page booklet, POEMS THE WHOLE WORLD LOVES. By Poe, Kipling, many more.

Send 15c for our booklet, POEMS THE WHOLE WORLD LOVES, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

The occasion was also Mrs. Kenneth Parish's birthday in honor of which Mrs. Graham Parish and Mrs. Donald Parish had prepared a birthday cake and the members presented her with a gorgeous bouquet of talisman roses and snapdragons. The ice cream was served by Mrs. James Forman and Mrs. Donald Paish, with Mrs. Kenneth Parish serving her birthday cake.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Kenneth Parish for the delightful afternoon and Mrs. George Adams and her assistants for the preparation and manner in which the tea was served.

Services at Albany Baptist Church

During the lenten season the mid-week services at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church will be of especial interest. The topics will be unusual Christian graces. On Thursday evening of this week the subject will be "Christian Revenge," how to get even in a Christian way.

This coming Sunday the communion will be observed at the morning service, and the pastor, the Rev. Arthur S. Cole, will bring a message on "Bearing One Another's Burdens."

The regular Sunday evening services will be resumed this Sunday, and the first service will be in charge of the Christian Endeavor Society, the president, Francis Skerritt, presiding. Different young people will take part and messages will be brought by Nelson Lewis on "Take My Cross" and Miss Ruth Koonz on "A New Earth." There will be special music by a young women's chorus under the direction of Mrs. H. H. Broughton.

Redeemer Opens Lenten Services

The Lenten season will open this Ash Wednesday evening at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, time 7:45. The Rev. Russell S. ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, March 2.—Mrs. De Groadt spent her birthday February 22, in a delightful way. Among the many nice gifts she received were two beautiful birthday cakes from her near neighbors and many messages of congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roosa of Kyserike and Mr. and Mrs. Abram Crose were her dinner guests.

Last week a flock of roosts settled on Mrs. Josephine Hoar's lawn very contented as if they were bringing a message from spring. Last year at nearly the same time a flock did this same thing, except there were more of them this time.

A congregational meeting will be held at the Trowbridge home to discuss church affairs Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Colwell of New Paltz were recent callers at the Hoar home. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. Abram Crose

Miss Virginia Smith of New York city spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Smith.

MEN LOVE Peppy GIRLS!

IF you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you places. But, if you are cross and always tired out, men won't like you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. They want girls who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening discomforts from the functional disorders which women endure in the three periods of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Pinkham's Compound, made especially for women from Nature's whole some herbs and roots, has helped women for over 60 years.

Will Not Widen Bridge This Year

Stories that the state highway department planned to widen the Rondout Creek Bridge 11 feet have been prevalent for some time, but it is understood that no definite action will be taken this year.

Owing to the heavy traffic that the bridge carries in the summer months there has been talk of widening the bridge the past few years. Inquiry at the Poughkeepsie office of the highway department today brought out the fact that no funds had been appropriated for that purpose, and that no steps had been taken to ask the board of supervisors to obtain the additional rights of way that would be needed to widen the bridge.

PREVIEWED

Broadway: "International Settlement." Set against the background of the Chinese-Japanese undeclared war, this thrilling melodrama has to do with four people who seek fame and great riches in the war ridden orient and during the excitement some meet sudden death, dishonor and disaster. But the usual film formula triumphs after all the bloodshed and the hero and heroine emerge unscathed after a hectic time of it. The cast features Dolores DelRio, George Sanders, June Lang and Richard Baldwin.

Kingston: "Crashing Hollywood" and "Hitting a New High." A story of inside Hollywood and of an unknown seeking fame in the movie capital forms the interest on the first attraction at the Kingston while Lily Pons sings and acts nobly as the star of the second picture. Here are two above average double features with Lee Tracy the whole show in "Crashing Hollywood" and Jack Oakie supporting Miss Pons in "Hitting a New High."

Orpheum: "They Won't Forget." Gloria Dickson, Claude Rains, Allyn Joslyn, Edward Norris and Otto Kruger struggle through this weighty melodrama of broken lives and human hates and the plot structure is held together by the skill of Mervyn LeRoy's direction. Selected short offerings complete the program.
